

THINGS TO COME | THE TWO WITNESSES
REVELATION 11:1-14

God's angelic messengers sounded six trumpets. Two of the three woes announced by the bird of prey will have taken place at this time. Now there is an interlude. Revelation includes several breaks amid judgement. We saw one between the opening of the sixth and seventh seal, and we see another between the sixth and seventh trumpet. These interludes remind us that God is still in control. They also give us a moment to catch our breath while reading of horrifying judgments. In some cases, they provide additional information about the events of the Tribulation. In chapter eleven, we see John instructed to measure a yet non-existent temple in Jerusalem. We also see two witnesses sent by God. Who are these witnesses, what is their purpose, and what can we learn from them?

1. God both _____ believers and _____ that we accomplish the _____ He set out for us.

2. God is perfectly just and will serve _____ to those who _____ His people.

3. God is incredibly _____ and shows mercy to the most wicked sinners who _____ and _____ on Jesus Christ.

THINGS TO COME | THE TWO WITNESSES
REVELATION 11:1-14

God's angelic messengers sounded six trumpets. Two of the three woes announced by the bird of prey will have taken place at this time. Now there is an interlude. Revelation includes several breaks amid judgement. We saw one between the opening of the sixth and seventh seal, and we see another between the sixth and seventh trumpet. These interludes remind us that God is still in control. They also give us a moment to catch our breath while reading of horrifying judgments. In some cases, they provide additional information about the events of the Tribulation. In chapter eleven, we see John instructed to measure a yet non-existent temple in Jerusalem. We also see two witnesses sent by God. Who are these witnesses, what is their purpose, and what can we learn from them?

1. God both _____ believers and _____ that we accomplish the _____ He set out for us.
2. God is perfectly just and will serve _____ to those who _____ His people.
3. God is incredibly _____ and shows mercy to the most wicked sinners who _____ and _____ on Jesus Christ.

THINGS TO COME | THE TWO WITNESSES
REVELATION 11:1-14

God's angelic messengers sounded six trumpets. Two of the three woes announced by the bird of prey will have taken place at this time. Now there is an interlude. Revelation includes several breaks amid judgement. We saw one between the opening of the sixth and seventh seal, and we see another between the sixth and seventh trumpet. These interludes remind us that God is still in control. They also give us a moment to catch our breath while reading of horrifying judgments. In some cases, they provide additional information about the events of the Tribulation. In chapter eleven, we see John instructed to measure a yet non-existent temple in Jerusalem. We also see two witnesses sent by God. Who are these witnesses, what is their purpose, and what can we learn from them?

1. God both _____ believers and _____ that we accomplish the _____ He set out for us.

2. God is perfectly just and will serve _____ to those who _____ His people.

3. God is incredibly _____ and shows mercy to the most wicked sinners who _____ and _____ on Jesus Christ.

THINGS TO COME | THE TWO WITNESSES
REVELATION 11:1-14

God's angelic messengers sounded six trumpets. Two of the three woes announced by the bird of prey will have taken place at this time. Now there is an interlude. Revelation includes several breaks amid judgement. We saw one between the opening of the sixth and seventh seal, and we see another between the sixth and seventh trumpet. These interludes remind us that God is still in control. They also give us a moment to catch our breath while reading of horrifying judgments. In some cases, they provide additional information about the events of the Tribulation. In chapter eleven, we see John instructed to measure a yet non-existent temple in Jerusalem. We also see two witnesses sent by God. Who are these witnesses, what is their purpose, and what can we learn from them?

1. God both _____ believers and _____ that we accomplish the _____ He set out for us.
2. God is perfectly just and will serve _____ to those who _____ His people.
3. God is incredibly _____ and shows mercy to the most wicked sinners who _____ and _____ on Jesus Christ.

THINGS TO COME | THE TWO WITNESSES
REVELATION 11:1-14

God's angelic messengers sounded six trumpets. Two of the three woes announced by the bird of prey will have taken place at this time. Now there is an interlude. Revelation includes several breaks amid judgement. We saw one between the opening of the sixth and seventh seal, and we see another between the sixth and seventh trumpet. These interludes remind us that God is still in control. They also give us a moment to catch our breath while reading of horrifying judgments. In some cases, they provide additional information about the events of the Tribulation. In chapter eleven, we see John instructed to measure a yet non-existent temple in Jerusalem. We also see two witnesses sent by God. Who are these witnesses, what is their purpose, and what can we learn from them?

1. God both _____ believers and _____ that we accomplish the _____ He set out for us.

2. God is perfectly just and will serve _____ to those who _____ His people.

3. God is incredibly _____ and shows mercy to the most wicked sinners who _____ and _____ on Jesus Christ.

THINGS TO COME | THE TWO WITNESSES
REVELATION 11:1-14

God's angelic messengers sounded six trumpets. Two of the three woes announced by the bird of prey will have taken place at this time. Now there is an interlude. Revelation includes several breaks amid judgement. We saw one between the opening of the sixth and seventh seal, and we see another between the sixth and seventh trumpet. These interludes remind us that God is still in control. They also give us a moment to catch our breath while reading of horrifying judgments. In some cases, they provide additional information about the events of the Tribulation. In chapter eleven, we see John instructed to measure a yet non-existent temple in Jerusalem. We also see two witnesses sent by God. Who are these witnesses, what is their purpose, and what can we learn from them?

1. God both _____ believers and _____ that we accomplish the _____ He set out for us.

2. God is perfectly just and will serve _____ to those who _____ His people.

3. God is incredibly _____ and shows mercy to the most wicked sinners who _____ and _____ on Jesus Christ.

THINGS TO COME | THE TWO WITNESSES
REVELATION 11:1-14

God's angelic messengers sounded six trumpets. Two of the three woes announced by the bird of prey will have taken place at this time. Now there is an interlude. Revelation includes several breaks amid judgement. We saw one between the opening of the sixth and seventh seal, and we see another between the sixth and seventh trumpet. These interludes remind us that God is still in control. They also give us a moment to catch our breath while reading of horrifying judgments. In some cases, they provide additional information about the events of the Tribulation. In chapter eleven, we see John instructed to measure a yet non-existent temple in Jerusalem. We also see two witnesses sent by God. Who are these witnesses, what is their purpose, and what can we learn from them?

1. God both _____ believers and _____ that we accomplish the _____ He set out for us.
2. God is perfectly just and will serve _____ to those who _____ His people.
3. God is incredibly _____ and shows mercy to the most wicked sinners who _____ and _____ on Jesus Christ.

THINGS TO COME | THE TWO WITNESSES
REVELATION 11:1-14

God's angelic messengers sounded six trumpets. Two of the three woes announced by the bird of prey will have taken place at this time. Now there is an interlude. Revelation includes several breaks amid judgement. We saw one between the opening of the sixth and seventh seal, and we see another between the sixth and seventh trumpet. These interludes remind us that God is still in control. They also give us a moment to catch our breath while reading of horrifying judgments. In some cases, they provide additional information about the events of the Tribulation. In chapter eleven, we see John instructed to measure a yet non-existent temple in Jerusalem. We also see two witnesses sent by God. Who are these witnesses, what is their purpose, and what can we learn from them?

1. God both _____ believers and _____ that we accomplish the _____ He set out for us.

2. God is perfectly just and will serve _____ to those who _____ His people.

3. God is incredibly _____ and shows mercy to the most wicked sinners who _____ and _____ on Jesus Christ.

THINGS TO COME | THE TWO WITNESSES
REVELATION 11:1-14

God's angelic messengers sounded six trumpets. Two of the three woes announced by the bird of prey will have taken place at this time. Now there is an interlude. Revelation includes several breaks amid judgement. We saw one between the opening of the sixth and seventh seal, and we see another between the sixth and seventh trumpet. These interludes remind us that God is still in control. They also give us a moment to catch our breath while reading of horrifying judgments. In some cases, they provide additional information about the events of the Tribulation. In chapter eleven, we see John instructed to measure a yet non-existent temple in Jerusalem. We also see two witnesses sent by God. Who are these witnesses, what is their purpose, and what can we learn from them?

1. God both _____ believers and _____ that we accomplish the _____ He set out for us.

2. God is perfectly just and will serve _____ to those who _____ His people.

3. God is incredibly _____ and shows mercy to the most wicked sinners who _____ and _____ on Jesus Christ.

THINGS TO COME | THE TWO WITNESSES
REVELATION 11:1-14

God's angelic messengers sounded six trumpets. Two of the three woes announced by the bird of prey will have taken place at this time. Now there is an interlude. Revelation includes several breaks amid judgement. We saw one between the opening of the sixth and seventh seal, and we see another between the sixth and seventh trumpet. These interludes remind us that God is still in control. They also give us a moment to catch our breath while reading of horrifying judgments. In some cases, they provide additional information about the events of the Tribulation. In chapter eleven, we see John instructed to measure a yet non-existent temple in Jerusalem. We also see two witnesses sent by God. Who are these witnesses, what is their purpose, and what can we learn from them?

1. God both _____ believers and _____ that we accomplish the _____ He set out for us.
2. God is perfectly just and will serve _____ to those who _____ His people.
3. God is incredibly _____ and shows mercy to the most wicked sinners who _____ and _____ on Jesus Christ.

THINGS TO COME | THE TWO WITNESSES
REVELATION 11:1-14

God's angelic messengers sounded six trumpets. Two of the three woes announced by the bird of prey will have taken place at this time. Now there is an interlude. Revelation includes several breaks amid judgement. We saw one between the opening of the sixth and seventh seal, and we see another between the sixth and seventh trumpet. These interludes remind us that God is still in control. They also give us a moment to catch our breath while reading of horrifying judgments. In some cases, they provide additional information about the events of the Tribulation. In chapter eleven, we see John instructed to measure a yet non-existent temple in Jerusalem. We also see two witnesses sent by God. Who are these witnesses, what is their purpose, and what can we learn from them?

1. God both _____ believers and _____ that we accomplish the _____ He set out for us.

2. God is perfectly just and will serve _____ to those who _____ His people.

3. God is incredibly _____ and shows mercy to the most wicked sinners who _____ and _____ on Jesus Christ.

THINGS TO COME | THE TWO WITNESSES
REVELATION 11:1-14

God's angelic messengers sounded six trumpets. Two of the three woes announced by the bird of prey will have taken place at this time. Now there is an interlude. Revelation includes several breaks amid judgement. We saw one between the opening of the sixth and seventh seal, and we see another between the sixth and seventh trumpet. These interludes remind us that God is still in control. They also give us a moment to catch our breath while reading of horrifying judgments. In some cases, they provide additional information about the events of the Tribulation. In chapter eleven, we see John instructed to measure a yet non-existent temple in Jerusalem. We also see two witnesses sent by God. Who are these witnesses, what is their purpose, and what can we learn from them?

1. God both _____ believers and _____ that we accomplish the _____ He set out for us.

2. God is perfectly just and will serve _____ to those who _____ His people.

3. God is incredibly _____ and shows mercy to the most wicked sinners who _____ and _____ on Jesus Christ.

THINGS TO COME | THE TWO WITNESSES
REVELATION 11:1-14

God's angelic messengers sounded six trumpets. Two of the three woes announced by the bird of prey will have taken place at this time. Now there is an interlude. Revelation includes several breaks amid judgement. We saw one between the opening of the sixth and seventh seal, and we see another between the sixth and seventh trumpet. These interludes remind us that God is still in control. They also give us a moment to catch our breath while reading of horrifying judgments. In some cases, they provide additional information about the events of the Tribulation. In chapter eleven, we see John instructed to measure a yet non-existent temple in Jerusalem. We also see two witnesses sent by God. Who are these witnesses, what is their purpose, and what can we learn from them?

1. God both _____ believers and _____ that we accomplish the _____ He set out for us.

2. God is perfectly just and will serve _____ to those who _____ His people.

3. God is incredibly _____ and shows mercy to the most wicked sinners who _____ and _____ on Jesus Christ.

THINGS TO COME | THE TWO WITNESSES
REVELATION 11:1-14

God's angelic messengers sounded six trumpets. Two of the three woes announced by the bird of prey will have taken place at this time. Now there is an interlude. Revelation includes several breaks amid judgement. We saw one between the opening of the sixth and seventh seal, and we see another between the sixth and seventh trumpet. These interludes remind us that God is still in control. They also give us a moment to catch our breath while reading of horrifying judgments. In some cases, they provide additional information about the events of the Tribulation. In chapter eleven, we see John instructed to measure a yet non-existent temple in Jerusalem. We also see two witnesses sent by God. Who are these witnesses, what is their purpose, and what can we learn from them?

1. God both _____ believers and _____ that we accomplish the _____ He set out for us.
2. God is perfectly just and will serve _____ to those who _____ His people.
3. God is incredibly _____ and shows mercy to the most wicked sinners who _____ and _____ on Jesus Christ.

THINGS TO COME | THE TWO WITNESSES
REVELATION 11:1-14

God's angelic messengers sounded six trumpets. Two of the three woes announced by the bird of prey will have taken place at this time. Now there is an interlude. Revelation includes several breaks amid judgement. We saw one between the opening of the sixth and seventh seal, and we see another between the sixth and seventh trumpet. These interludes remind us that God is still in control. They also give us a moment to catch our breath while reading of horrifying judgments. In some cases, they provide additional information about the events of the Tribulation. In chapter eleven, we see John instructed to measure a yet non-existent temple in Jerusalem. We also see two witnesses sent by God. Who are these witnesses, what is their purpose, and what can we learn from them?

1. God both _____ believers and _____ that we accomplish the _____ He set out for us.

2. God is perfectly just and will serve _____ to those who _____ His people.

3. God is incredibly _____ and shows mercy to the most wicked sinners who _____ and _____ on Jesus Christ.

THINGS TO COME | THE TWO WITNESSES
REVELATION 11:1-14

God's angelic messengers sounded six trumpets. Two of the three woes announced by the bird of prey will have taken place at this time. Now there is an interlude. Revelation includes several breaks amid judgement. We saw one between the opening of the sixth and seventh seal, and we see another between the sixth and seventh trumpet. These interludes remind us that God is still in control. They also give us a moment to catch our breath while reading of horrifying judgments. In some cases, they provide additional information about the events of the Tribulation. In chapter eleven, we see John instructed to measure a yet non-existent temple in Jerusalem. We also see two witnesses sent by God. Who are these witnesses, what is their purpose, and what can we learn from them?

1. God both _____ believers and _____ that we accomplish the _____ He set out for us.

2. God is perfectly just and will serve _____ to those who _____ His people.

3. God is incredibly _____ and shows mercy to the most wicked sinners who _____ and _____ on Jesus Christ.

THINGS TO COME | THE TWO WITNESSES
REVELATION 11:1-14

God's angelic messengers sounded six trumpets. Two of the three woes announced by the bird of prey will have taken place at this time. Now there is an interlude. Revelation includes several breaks amid judgement. We saw one between the opening of the sixth and seventh seal, and we see another between the sixth and seventh trumpet. These interludes remind us that God is still in control. They also give us a moment to catch our breath while reading of horrifying judgments. In some cases, they provide additional information about the events of the Tribulation. In chapter eleven, we see John instructed to measure a yet non-existent temple in Jerusalem. We also see two witnesses sent by God. Who are these witnesses, what is their purpose, and what can we learn from them?

1. God both _____ believers and _____ that we accomplish the _____ He set out for us.

2. God is perfectly just and will serve _____ to those who _____ His people.

3. God is incredibly _____ and shows mercy to the most wicked sinners who _____ and _____ on Jesus Christ.

THINGS TO COME | THE TWO WITNESSES
REVELATION 11:1-14

God's angelic messengers sounded six trumpets. Two of the three woes announced by the bird of prey will have taken place at this time. Now there is an interlude. Revelation includes several breaks amid judgement. We saw one between the opening of the sixth and seventh seal, and we see another between the sixth and seventh trumpet. These interludes remind us that God is still in control. They also give us a moment to catch our breath while reading of horrifying judgments. In some cases, they provide additional information about the events of the Tribulation. In chapter eleven, we see John instructed to measure a yet non-existent temple in Jerusalem. We also see two witnesses sent by God. Who are these witnesses, what is their purpose, and what can we learn from them?

1. God both _____ believers and _____ that we accomplish the _____ He set out for us.
2. God is perfectly just and will serve _____ to those who _____ His people.
3. God is incredibly _____ and shows mercy to the most wicked sinners who _____ and _____ on Jesus Christ.

THINGS TO COME | THE TWO WITNESSES
REVELATION 11:1-14

God's angelic messengers sounded six trumpets. Two of the three woes announced by the bird of prey will have taken place at this time. Now there is an interlude. Revelation includes several breaks amid judgement. We saw one between the opening of the sixth and seventh seal, and we see another between the sixth and seventh trumpet. These interludes remind us that God is still in control. They also give us a moment to catch our breath while reading of horrifying judgments. In some cases, they provide additional information about the events of the Tribulation. In chapter eleven, we see John instructed to measure a yet non-existent temple in Jerusalem. We also see two witnesses sent by God. Who are these witnesses, what is their purpose, and what can we learn from them?

1. God both _____ believers and _____ that we accomplish the _____ He set out for us.

2. God is perfectly just and will serve _____ to those who _____ His people.

3. God is incredibly _____ and shows mercy to the most wicked sinners who _____ and _____ on Jesus Christ.

THINGS TO COME | THE TWO WITNESSES
REVELATION 11:1-14

God's angelic messengers sounded six trumpets. Two of the three woes announced by the bird of prey will have taken place at this time. Now there is an interlude. Revelation includes several breaks amid judgement. We saw one between the opening of the sixth and seventh seal, and we see another between the sixth and seventh trumpet. These interludes remind us that God is still in control. They also give us a moment to catch our breath while reading of horrifying judgments. In some cases, they provide additional information about the events of the Tribulation. In chapter eleven, we see John instructed to measure a yet non-existent temple in Jerusalem. We also see two witnesses sent by God. Who are these witnesses, what is their purpose, and what can we learn from them?

1. God both _____ believers and _____ that we accomplish the _____ He set out for us.

2. God is perfectly just and will serve _____ to those who _____ His people.

3. God is incredibly _____ and shows mercy to the most wicked sinners who _____ and _____ on Jesus Christ.

THINGS TO COME | THE TWO WITNESSES
REVELATION 11:1-14

God's angelic messengers sounded six trumpets. Two of the three woes announced by the bird of prey will have taken place at this time. Now there is an interlude. Revelation includes several breaks amid judgement. We saw one between the opening of the sixth and seventh seal, and we see another between the sixth and seventh trumpet. These interludes remind us that God is still in control. They also give us a moment to catch our breath while reading of horrifying judgments. In some cases, they provide additional information about the events of the Tribulation. In chapter eleven, we see John instructed to measure a yet non-existent temple in Jerusalem. We also see two witnesses sent by God. Who are these witnesses, what is their purpose, and what can we learn from them?

1. God both _____ believers and _____ that we accomplish the _____ He set out for us.

2. God is perfectly just and will serve _____ to those who _____ His people.

3. God is incredibly _____ and shows mercy to the most wicked sinners who _____ and _____ on Jesus Christ.

THINGS TO COME | THE TWO WITNESSES
REVELATION 11:1-14

God's angelic messengers sounded six trumpets. Two of the three woes announced by the bird of prey will have taken place at this time. Now there is an interlude. Revelation includes several breaks amid judgement. We saw one between the opening of the sixth and seventh seal, and we see another between the sixth and seventh trumpet. These interludes remind us that God is still in control. They also give us a moment to catch our breath while reading of horrifying judgments. In some cases, they provide additional information about the events of the Tribulation. In chapter eleven, we see John instructed to measure a yet non-existent temple in Jerusalem. We also see two witnesses sent by God. Who are these witnesses, what is their purpose, and what can we learn from them?

1. God both _____ believers and _____ that we accomplish the _____ He set out for us.

2. God is perfectly just and will serve _____ to those who _____ His people.

3. God is incredibly _____ and shows mercy to the most wicked sinners who _____ and _____ on Jesus Christ.

THINGS TO COME | THE TWO WITNESSES
REVELATION 11:1-14

God's angelic messengers sounded six trumpets. Two of the three woes announced by the bird of prey will have taken place at this time. Now there is an interlude. Revelation includes several breaks amid judgement. We saw one between the opening of the sixth and seventh seal, and we see another between the sixth and seventh trumpet. These interludes remind us that God is still in control. They also give us a moment to catch our breath while reading of horrifying judgments. In some cases, they provide additional information about the events of the Tribulation. In chapter eleven, we see John instructed to measure a yet non-existent temple in Jerusalem. We also see two witnesses sent by God. Who are these witnesses, what is their purpose, and what can we learn from them?

1. God both _____ believers and _____ that we accomplish the _____ He set out for us.
2. God is perfectly just and will serve _____ to those who _____ His people.
3. God is incredibly _____ and shows mercy to the most wicked sinners who _____ and _____ on Jesus Christ.

THINGS TO COME | THE TWO WITNESSES
REVELATION 11:1-14

God's angelic messengers sounded six trumpets. Two of the three woes announced by the bird of prey will have taken place at this time. Now there is an interlude. Revelation includes several breaks amid judgement. We saw one between the opening of the sixth and seventh seal, and we see another between the sixth and seventh trumpet. These interludes remind us that God is still in control. They also give us a moment to catch our breath while reading of horrifying judgments. In some cases, they provide additional information about the events of the Tribulation. In chapter eleven, we see John instructed to measure a yet non-existent temple in Jerusalem. We also see two witnesses sent by God. Who are these witnesses, what is their purpose, and what can we learn from them?

1. God both _____ believers and _____ that we accomplish the _____ He set out for us.
2. God is perfectly just and will serve _____ to those who _____ His people.
3. God is incredibly _____ and shows mercy to the most wicked sinners who _____ and _____ on Jesus Christ.

THINGS TO COME | THE TWO WITNESSES
REVELATION 11:1-14

God's angelic messengers sounded six trumpets. Two of the three woes announced by the bird of prey will have taken place at this time. Now there is an interlude. Revelation includes several breaks amid judgement. We saw one between the opening of the sixth and seventh seal, and we see another between the sixth and seventh trumpet. These interludes remind us that God is still in control. They also give us a moment to catch our breath while reading of horrifying judgments. In some cases, they provide additional information about the events of the Tribulation. In chapter eleven, we see John instructed to measure a yet non-existent temple in Jerusalem. We also see two witnesses sent by God. Who are these witnesses, what is their purpose, and what can we learn from them?

1. God both _____ believers and _____ that we accomplish the _____ He set out for us.

2. God is perfectly just and will serve _____ to those who _____ His people.

3. God is incredibly _____ and shows mercy to the most wicked sinners who _____ and _____ on Jesus Christ.

THINGS TO COME | THE TWO WITNESSES
REVELATION 11:1-14

God's angelic messengers sounded six trumpets. Two of the three woes announced by the bird of prey will have taken place at this time. Now there is an interlude. Revelation includes several breaks amid judgement. We saw one between the opening of the sixth and seventh seal, and we see another between the sixth and seventh trumpet. These interludes remind us that God is still in control. They also give us a moment to catch our breath while reading of horrifying judgments. In some cases, they provide additional information about the events of the Tribulation. In chapter eleven, we see John instructed to measure a yet non-existent temple in Jerusalem. We also see two witnesses sent by God. Who are these witnesses, what is their purpose, and what can we learn from them?

1. God both _____ believers and _____ that we accomplish the _____ He set out for us.

2. God is perfectly just and will serve _____ to those who _____ His people.

3. God is incredibly _____ and shows mercy to the most wicked sinners who _____ and _____ on Jesus Christ.

THINGS TO COME | THE TWO WITNESSES
REVELATION 11:1-14

God's angelic messengers sounded six trumpets. Two of the three woes announced by the bird of prey will have taken place at this time. Now there is an interlude. Revelation includes several breaks amid judgement. We saw one between the opening of the sixth and seventh seal, and we see another between the sixth and seventh trumpet. These interludes remind us that God is still in control. They also give us a moment to catch our breath while reading of horrifying judgments. In some cases, they provide additional information about the events of the Tribulation. In chapter eleven, we see John instructed to measure a yet non-existent temple in Jerusalem. We also see two witnesses sent by God. Who are these witnesses, what is their purpose, and what can we learn from them?

1. God both _____ believers and _____ that we accomplish the _____ He set out for us.

2. God is perfectly just and will serve _____ to those who _____ His people.

3. God is incredibly _____ and shows mercy to the most wicked sinners who _____ and _____ on Jesus Christ.

THINGS TO COME | THE TWO WITNESSES
REVELATION 11:1-14

God's angelic messengers sounded six trumpets. Two of the three woes announced by the bird of prey will have taken place at this time. Now there is an interlude. Revelation includes several breaks amid judgement. We saw one between the opening of the sixth and seventh seal, and we see another between the sixth and seventh trumpet. These interludes remind us that God is still in control. They also give us a moment to catch our breath while reading of horrifying judgments. In some cases, they provide additional information about the events of the Tribulation. In chapter eleven, we see John instructed to measure a yet non-existent temple in Jerusalem. We also see two witnesses sent by God. Who are these witnesses, what is their purpose, and what can we learn from them?

1. God both _____ believers and _____ that we accomplish the _____ He set out for us.

2. God is perfectly just and will serve _____ to those who _____ His people.

3. God is incredibly _____ and shows mercy to the most wicked sinners who _____ and _____ on Jesus Christ.

THINGS TO COME | THE TWO WITNESSES
REVELATION 11:1-14

God's angelic messengers sounded six trumpets. Two of the three woes announced by the bird of prey will have taken place at this time. Now there is an interlude. Revelation includes several breaks amid judgement. We saw one between the opening of the sixth and seventh seal, and we see another between the sixth and seventh trumpet. These interludes remind us that God is still in control. They also give us a moment to catch our breath while reading of horrifying judgments. In some cases, they provide additional information about the events of the Tribulation. In chapter eleven, we see John instructed to measure a yet non-existent temple in Jerusalem. We also see two witnesses sent by God. Who are these witnesses, what is their purpose, and what can we learn from them?

1. God both _____ believers and _____ that we accomplish the _____ He set out for us.
2. God is perfectly just and will serve _____ to those who _____ His people.
3. God is incredibly _____ and shows mercy to the most wicked sinners who _____ and _____ on Jesus Christ.

THINGS TO COME | THE TWO WITNESSES
REVELATION 11:1-14

God's angelic messengers sounded six trumpets. Two of the three woes announced by the bird of prey will have taken place at this time. Now there is an interlude. Revelation includes several breaks amid judgement. We saw one between the opening of the sixth and seventh seal, and we see another between the sixth and seventh trumpet. These interludes remind us that God is still in control. They also give us a moment to catch our breath while reading of horrifying judgments. In some cases, they provide additional information about the events of the Tribulation. In chapter eleven, we see John instructed to measure a yet non-existent temple in Jerusalem. We also see two witnesses sent by God. Who are these witnesses, what is their purpose, and what can we learn from them?

1. God both _____ believers and _____ that we accomplish the _____ He set out for us.

2. God is perfectly just and will serve _____ to those who _____ His people.

3. God is incredibly _____ and shows mercy to the most wicked sinners who _____ and _____ on Jesus Christ.

THINGS TO COME | THE TWO WITNESSES
REVELATION 11:1-14

God's angelic messengers sounded six trumpets. Two of the three woes announced by the bird of prey will have taken place at this time. Now there is an interlude. Revelation includes several breaks amid judgement. We saw one between the opening of the sixth and seventh seal, and we see another between the sixth and seventh trumpet. These interludes remind us that God is still in control. They also give us a moment to catch our breath while reading of horrifying judgments. In some cases, they provide additional information about the events of the Tribulation. In chapter eleven, we see John instructed to measure a yet non-existent temple in Jerusalem. We also see two witnesses sent by God. Who are these witnesses, what is their purpose, and what can we learn from them?

1. God both _____ believers and _____ that we accomplish the _____ He set out for us.

2. God is perfectly just and will serve _____ to those who _____ His people.

3. God is incredibly _____ and shows mercy to the most wicked sinners who _____ and _____ on Jesus Christ.

THINGS TO COME | THE TWO WITNESSES
REVELATION 11:1-14

God's angelic messengers sounded six trumpets. Two of the three woes announced by the bird of prey will have taken place at this time. Now there is an interlude. Revelation includes several breaks amid judgement. We saw one between the opening of the sixth and seventh seal, and we see another between the sixth and seventh trumpet. These interludes remind us that God is still in control. They also give us a moment to catch our breath while reading of horrifying judgments. In some cases, they provide additional information about the events of the Tribulation. In chapter eleven, we see John instructed to measure a yet non-existent temple in Jerusalem. We also see two witnesses sent by God. Who are these witnesses, what is their purpose, and what can we learn from them?

1. God both _____ believers and _____ that we accomplish the _____ He set out for us.

2. God is perfectly just and will serve _____ to those who _____ His people.

3. God is incredibly _____ and shows mercy to the most wicked sinners who _____ and _____ on Jesus Christ.

THINGS TO COME | THE TWO WITNESSES
REVELATION 11:1-14

God's angelic messengers sounded six trumpets. Two of the three woes announced by the bird of prey will have taken place at this time. Now there is an interlude. Revelation includes several breaks amid judgement. We saw one between the opening of the sixth and seventh seal, and we see another between the sixth and seventh trumpet. These interludes remind us that God is still in control. They also give us a moment to catch our breath while reading of horrifying judgments. In some cases, they provide additional information about the events of the Tribulation. In chapter eleven, we see John instructed to measure a yet non-existent temple in Jerusalem. We also see two witnesses sent by God. Who are these witnesses, what is their purpose, and what can we learn from them?

1. God both _____ believers and _____ that we accomplish the _____ He set out for us.

2. God is perfectly just and will serve _____ to those who _____ His people.

3. God is incredibly _____ and shows mercy to the most wicked sinners who _____ and _____ on Jesus Christ.

THINGS TO COME | THE TWO WITNESSES
REVELATION 11:1-14

God's angelic messengers sounded six trumpets. Two of the three woes announced by the bird of prey will have taken place at this time. Now there is an interlude. Revelation includes several breaks amid judgement. We saw one between the opening of the sixth and seventh seal, and we see another between the sixth and seventh trumpet. These interludes remind us that God is still in control. They also give us a moment to catch our breath while reading of horrifying judgments. In some cases, they provide additional information about the events of the Tribulation. In chapter eleven, we see John instructed to measure a yet non-existent temple in Jerusalem. We also see two witnesses sent by God. Who are these witnesses, what is their purpose, and what can we learn from them?

1. God both _____ believers and _____ that we accomplish the _____ He set out for us.

2. God is perfectly just and will serve _____ to those who _____ His people.

3. God is incredibly _____ and shows mercy to the most wicked sinners who _____ and _____ on Jesus Christ.

THINGS TO COME | THE TWO WITNESSES
REVELATION 11:1-14

God's angelic messengers sounded six trumpets. Two of the three woes announced by the bird of prey will have taken place at this time. Now there is an interlude. Revelation includes several breaks amid judgement. We saw one between the opening of the sixth and seventh seal, and we see another between the sixth and seventh trumpet. These interludes remind us that God is still in control. They also give us a moment to catch our breath while reading of horrifying judgments. In some cases, they provide additional information about the events of the Tribulation. In chapter eleven, we see John instructed to measure a yet non-existent temple in Jerusalem. We also see two witnesses sent by God. Who are these witnesses, what is their purpose, and what can we learn from them?

1. God both _____ believers and _____ that we accomplish the _____ He set out for us.
2. God is perfectly just and will serve _____ to those who _____ His people.
3. God is incredibly _____ and shows mercy to the most wicked sinners who _____ and _____ on Jesus Christ.